AUTUMN 2026

A NOTE FROM OUR PUBLISHING DIRECTOR

Welcome to Papadakis.

As we approach our 60th anniversary in 2027, I find myself reflecting on the remarkable publishing history from which Papadakis has grown – and on what it means to continue a family publishing tradition.

In 1967, my father published his first book. From that beginning grew a distinguished catalogue of books and magazines, and a remarkable world of authors, artists, architects, photographers, designers, scientists, thinkers, and curious people of every description. Publishing has opened doors into subjects I might otherwise never have encountered, and created friendships and collaborations that have lasted decades.

Andreas Papadakis championed causes and movements that were ahead of their time, publishing through a period of extraordinary change and creativity. It's an ethos I grew up with, and one that continues to shape Papadakis today: the instinct to recognise a remarkable idea, image, or body of work; the conviction to champion it – whether it's an obvious choice, or not; and the belief in what a beautifully conceived and produced book can become.

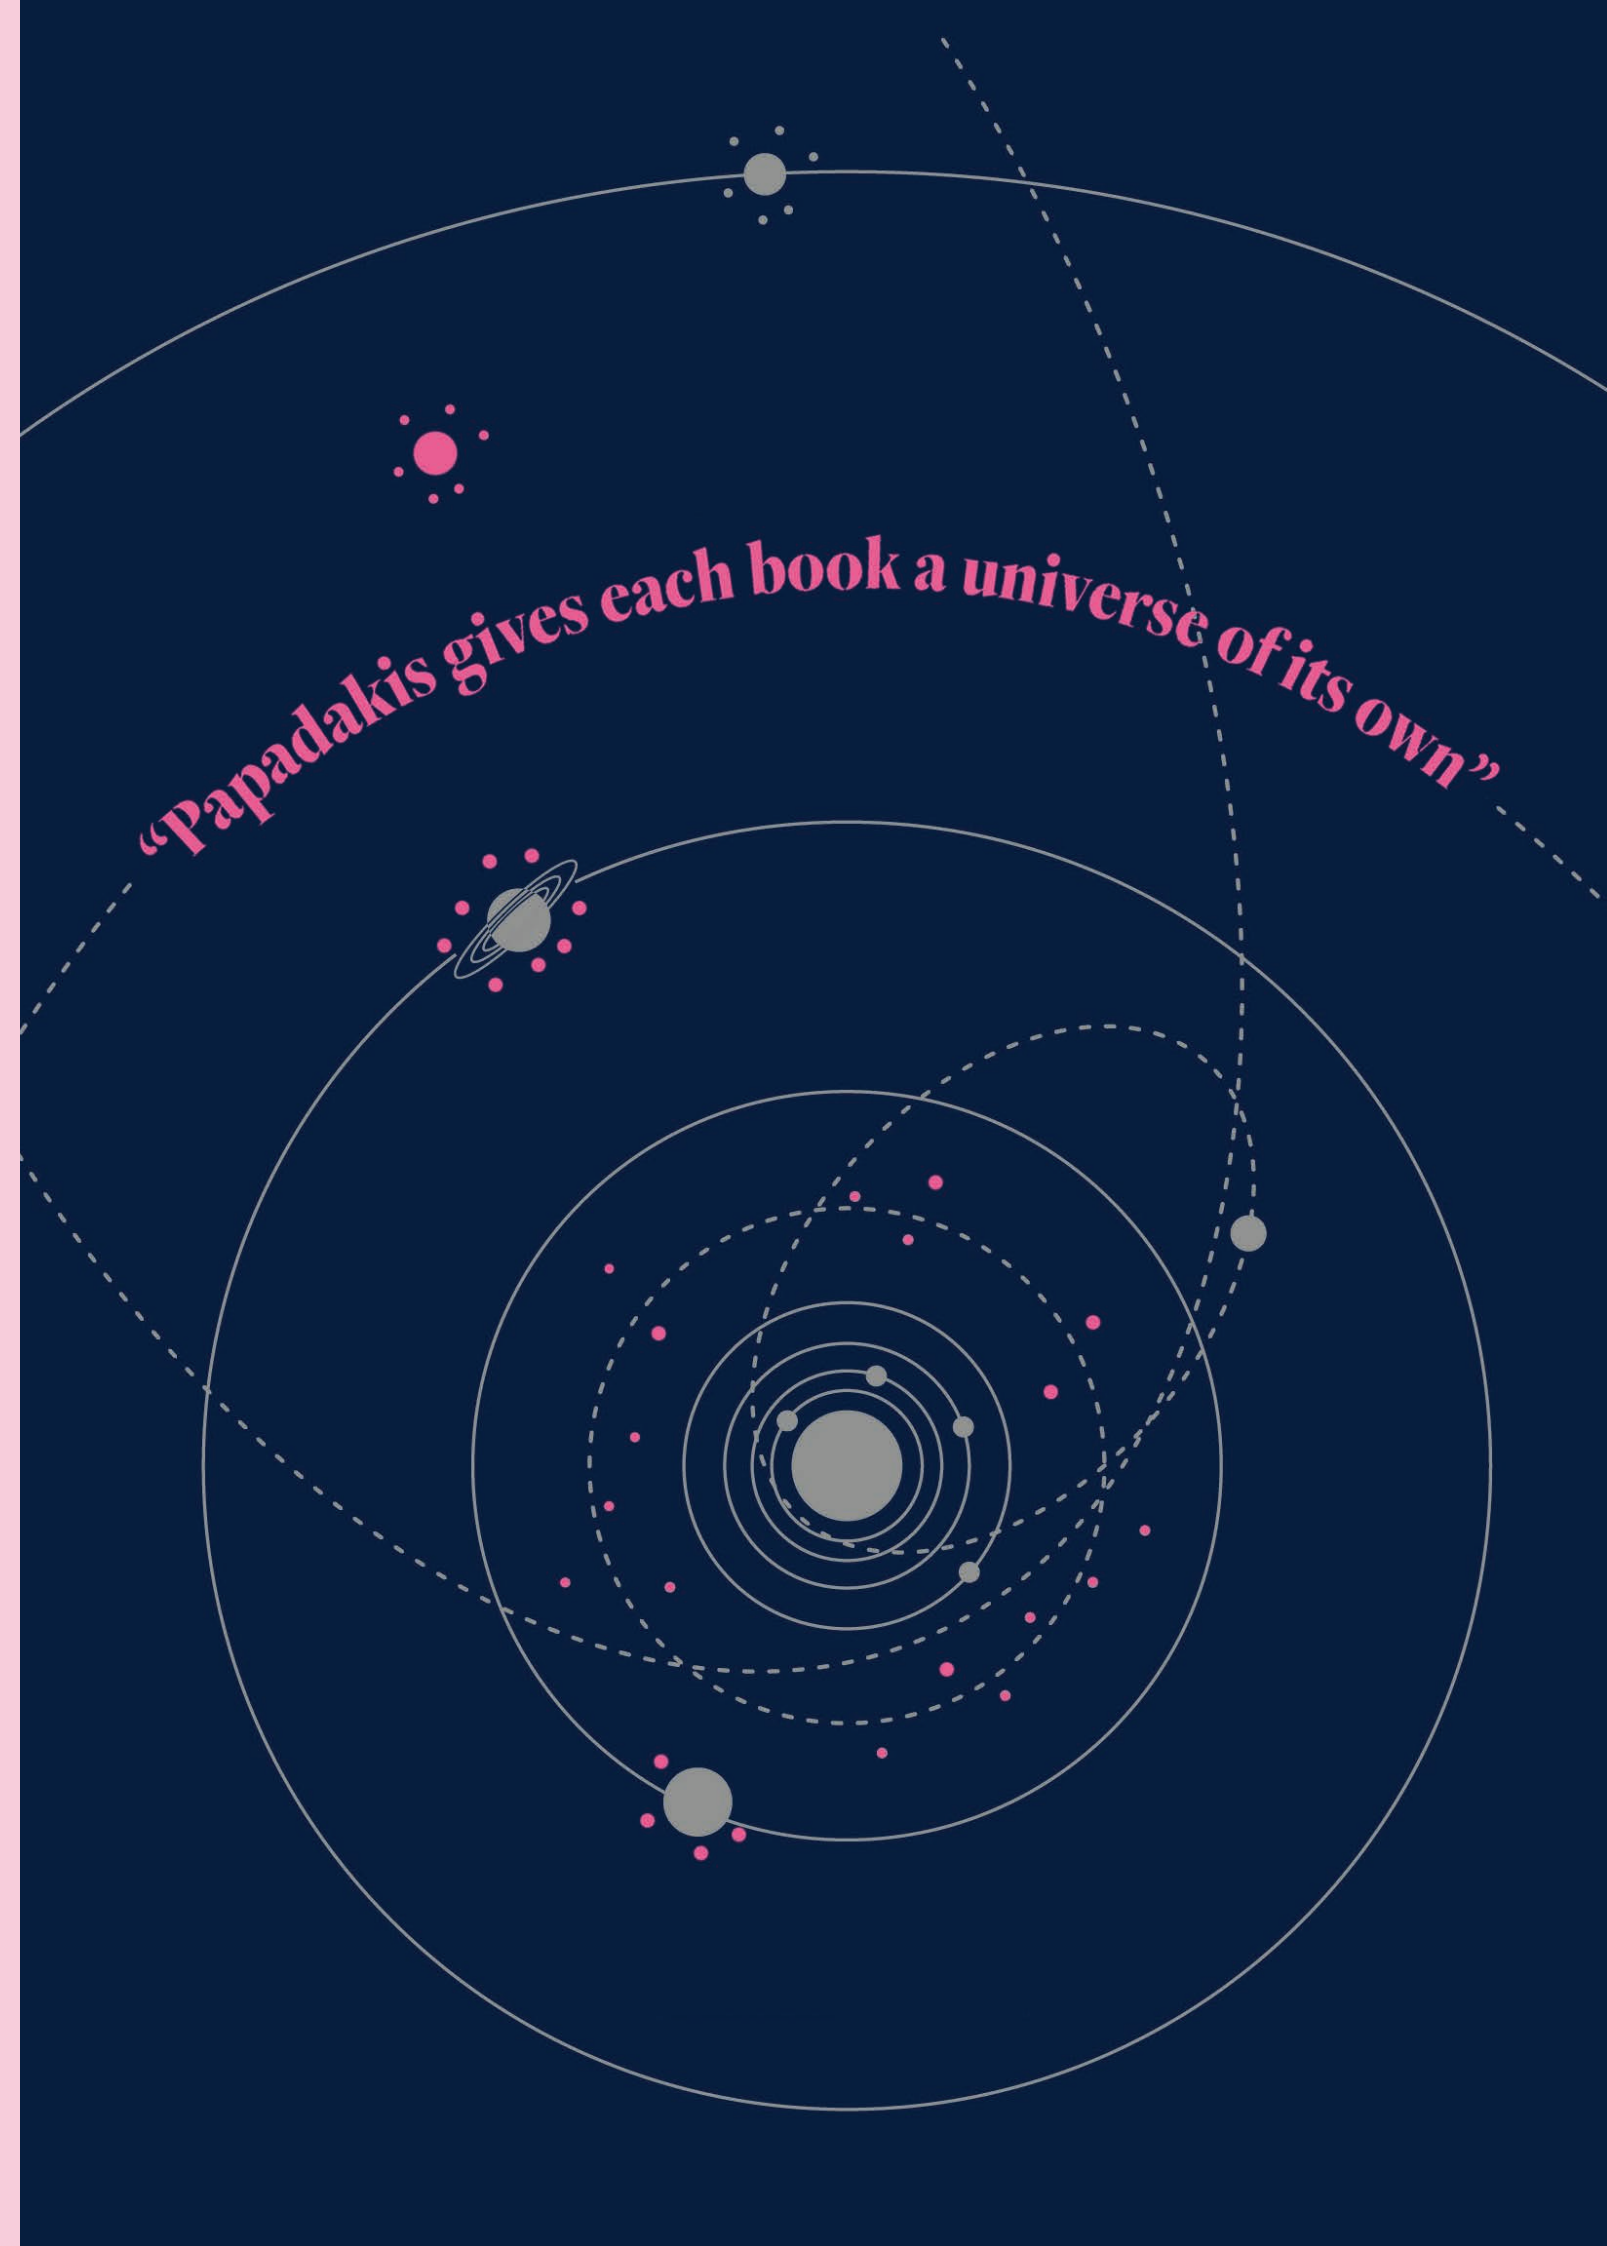

This year also brought immense recognition when Papadakis was named "Best Publisher in the World" at the Gourmand Awards. Edouard Cointreau, Chairman of the Gourmand Awards, subsequently described Papadakis as "the art publisher that continually surprises the world, giving each book a universe of its own". I can't think of a better way to describe what we strive to achieve.

I hope you enjoy discovering our latest books – and those still to come.

STORIES & RECIPES FROM LONDON'S ICONIC INDIAN RESTAURANTS

VIVEK SINGH & JEAN CAZALS

252 x 310 mm
240 pages
Hardback
ISBN: 978-1-906506-86-5
£50.00 / $70.00
Publication: October 2026

Marking 25 years of culinary brilliance, Spirit & Spice celebrates the extraordinary journey of chef Vivek Singh and his acclaimed restaurants, weaving together behind-the-scenes stories from the kitchen and reflections on Vivek's journey in an ever-changing restaurant landscape.

From the grandeur of The Cinnamon Club to Cinnamon Kitchen and Cinnamon Bazaar, Vivek Singh's distinctive fusion of Indian flavours and Western techniques has helped define modern Indian dining in London. Featuring over 65 signature recipes, many in print for the first time, alongside photography by Jean Cazals, Spirit & Spice is part cookbook, part memoir, and a celebration of the people, places and plates behind Vivek's gastronomic legacy.

- Includes photography by the award-winning Jean Cazals from multiple shoots across the Cinnamon Collection, capturing the food, characters, and beautiful interiors which make these restaurants so iconic
- Features over 65 signature recipes many which have never appeared in print before
- Offers exclusive behind-the-scenes stories of the people, places, and philosophy that shaped the Cinnamon brand
- A luxurious keepsake for food lovers and fans of modern Indian cuisine, celebrating a culinary legacy

“The way we eat Indian food in this country changed forever the day The Cinnamon Club opened its doors, and we should all be, as I am, eternally grateful.”
Giles Coren
The Times

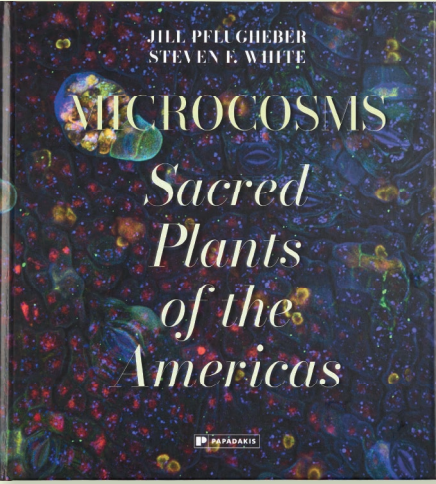

“The Cinnamon Club has always been more than a restaurant. It represents the origin of modern Indian food in the UK, with Vivek Singh having established its place in the hospitality pantheon over a remarkable quarter of a century.”

264 pages
Word count: 65,000
Hardback
ISBN: 978-1-906506-79-7
£40.00 / $50.00

Follow world-renowned expert Steven F. White into the transformative world of sacred plants, as he brings anthropology, art, spirituality, and ancient wisdom together with the mesmerising detail of Jill Pflugheber's cutting-edge confocal plant microscopy.

From the secrets of ayahuasca to the mystical experiences of psilocybin mushrooms, the ceremonial use of tobacco, and the roots of corn and potatoes, Microcosms reveals the inner lives of plants and fungi revered by Indigenous communities as healers, storytellers, and spirit-guides. Illustrating over 50 culturally-significant plants, Microcosms opens a portal into a world where ancestral knowledge and contemporary science converge to offer a truly visionary experience.

- Published to coincide with a major exhibition at Harvard University in October 2025
- Exploration of psychoactive plants aligns with the rapidly growing interest in and audience for work on the nature and functions of psychedelics
- Highlights the sacred role of plants in indigenous traditions, appealing to readers interested in ethnobotany, spirituality, and indigenous knowledge
- Deep cultural and spiritual significance, appealing to a diverse public interested in anthropology, religious and spiritual studies, and Native American studies
- Exquisite, never-seen-before confocal microscopy images

176 pages
Word count: 20,000
Hardback
ISBN: 978-1-906506-76-6
£49.99 / $65.00

The remarkable story of Kiki McDonough, a leading female British designer, and her globally renowned jewellery, which is much loved by the Royal family, and worn by the modern woman.

Over forty years, Kiki has built a much-celebrated brand, designing a multitude of sought-after and timeless pieces. One of the first jewellery designers to popularise coloured gemstones outside of the big three (rubies, emeralds, and sapphires), Kiki creates jewellery with a multitude of beautiful colours which speak to the stylish modern woman. Her jewellery is frequently worn by HRH Catherine, Princess of Wales, while major pieces now form part of the modern jewellery collection at the V&A Museum, London.

- Extensive media campaign and associated events support in support of the launch of the book
- Subject of an exhibition at the Saatchi Gallery
- The book has received impressive media coverage, with features in Marie Claire, The Telegraph, The Times, The Daily Mail, Country Life, Sunday With Laura Kuenssberg...
- Over 200 photographs of fine jewellery
- Marks 40th anniversary of a leading female jewellery designer

“ A sparkling story.”

We Feed The UK is an acclaimed storytelling campaign, pairing photographers and poets with the UK's most inspiring custodians of soil, sea, and seed.

We Feed The UK brings together over 40 collaborators from the environment and arts sectors to share time-critical stories across urban, rural, and coastal areas. These include multi-generational, Black-led growing projects in London, a majority women workers cooperative in Edinburgh, and sustainable fishing along the south coast. Their encounters are diverse, moving, and unexpected: ten powerful stories sowing seeds for a future where regenerative practices are the roots of our future resilience.

- Extensive media with accompanying exhibitions at the Martin Parr Foundation and Royal Photographic Society and Summer Festivals
- This book follows the Gaia Foundation's hugely successful We Feed The World exhibition and book
- 45,000 attendees at WFTUK exhibitions and events across the UK over the last year
- Extremely topical given current political landscape and discussions around both farming and sustainability

“ A pioneering new book highlights the power of regenerative agriculture.”

“Beautiful and moving ... Stunning images of our frozen Earth.”
New Scientist

Our Frozen Planet is a sensational photographic exploration of the world of ice and snow, from oceans to ice sheets, glaciers to ice caves, and the stunning landscapes of the world's major mountain ranges.

We live on a planet where up to a third of the land area is covered by snow and ice during the winter. This frozen world, known as the cryosphere, is captured in all its remarkable beauty by the spectacular photography within this book. Our Frozen Planet is a celebration of these frozen realms, inviting readers to embark upon a stunning photographic journey through the cryosphere.

However, this book also carries a stark warning: although the cryosphere represents a significant component of Planet Earth, it is rapidly declining in response to global warming. The next few generations of humanity will see unprecedented change in ice and snow cover. Now is the time to place on record the magical beauty of such areas.

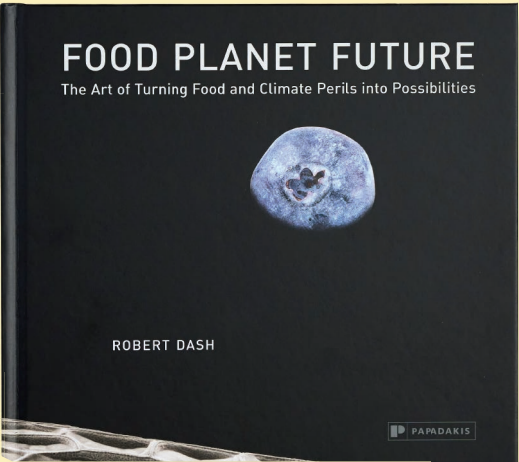

- Highly topical – aligns with growing global urgency for climate awareness and action
- Authored by leading experts with over 50 years of combined field experience
- Over 230 stunning photographs of the world's most extreme and breathtaking landscapes

Author Robert Dash illustrates and describes practices, tools, knowledge, and research which, if implemented on a wide scale, could help reverse climate change threats and biodiversity loss.

Food Planet Future takes the reader on an extraordinary visual tour of everyday foods and, in the process, connects us more deeply to the world we help to shape. It draws upon art, research, and innovative practices to reimagine the tangled crises of food security, climate change, and biodiversity loss we are facing. This book invokes awe and wonder, and inspires action taken on our Earth’s behalf.

Dash invites readers to reimagine the possibilities for Earth-friendly agriculture, stirring the imagination and provoking ideas and questions. Regenerative and sustainable agriculture is within our ability to achieve: there is hope – if we choose to listen.

- Tackles hugely topical themes of future of food, sustainability, and climate change
- Striking and unique imagery
- Presents exciting new developments and technologies in food production, which offer positive solutions to a global crisis
- Multi-award-winning book

“An inspiring call to action inviting us all to reimagine a more resilient, regenerative future for our planet, one thoughtful bite at a time.”

Edouard Cointreau, Gourmand World Awards

“Food Planet Future stands out as a captivating journey into art and environmental advocacy ... Beyond its aesthetic allure, Dash’s work ignites conversations about the sustainability of our food systems in the face of the climate crisis.”

Industrial Scars is the work of environmentalist and photographer, J Henry Fair, who brings our attentions to the tragic effects created by human impact on our planet.

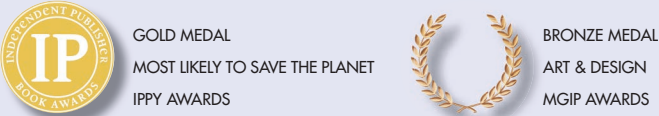

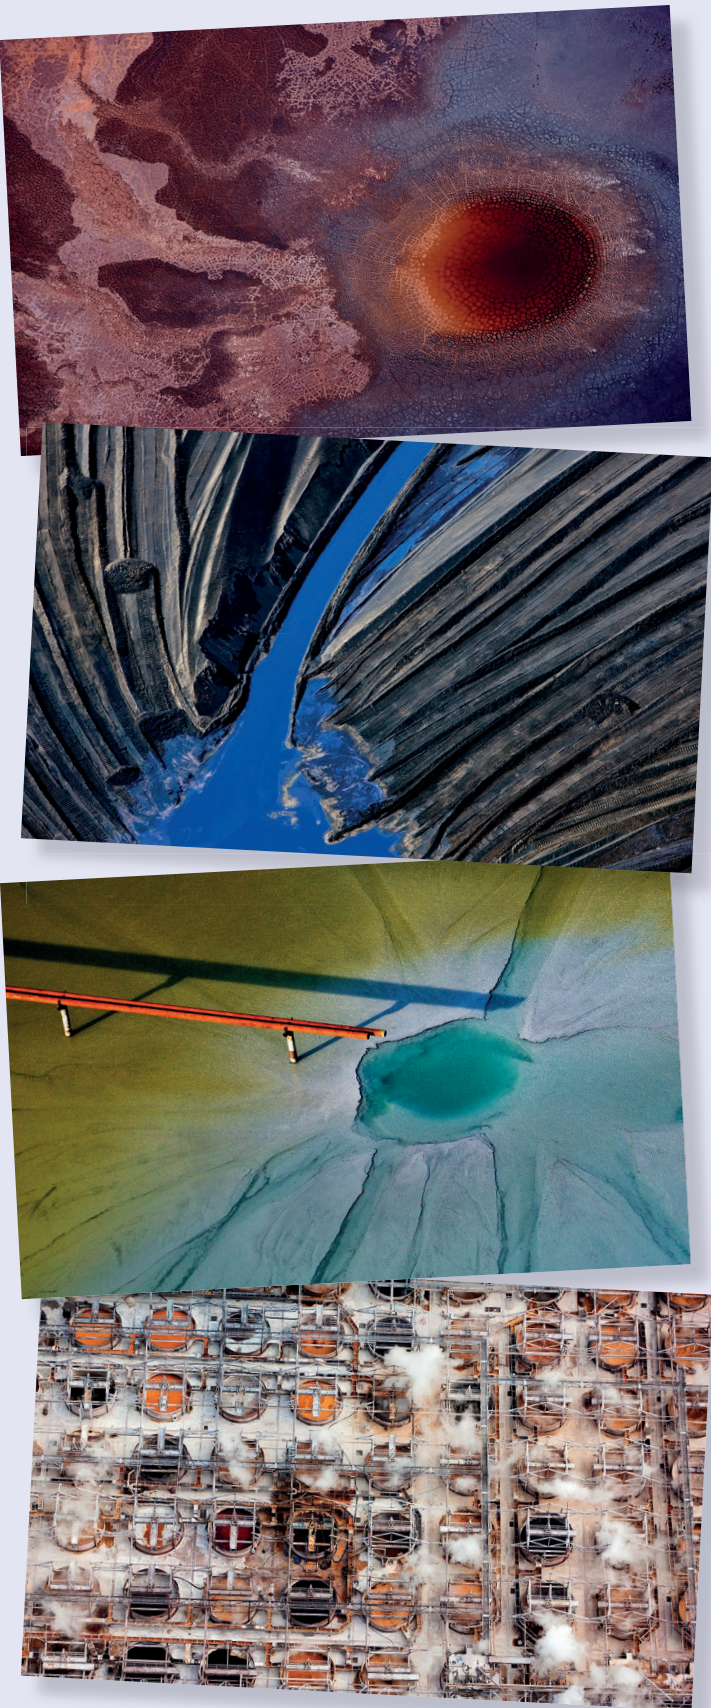

Our ever-increasing demand for energy, rapidly changing eating habits and rampant consumerism are rapidly leading to the degradation of our planet. Industrial Scars reveals unseen views of the effects of such production on our environment, exposing the secrets from oil drilling, hydro-fracking and coalash waste, to large scale agricultural production and abandoned mining operations.

At first, his photographs are mesmerisingly beautiful: taken at bird’s eye perspective from a small plane, their shapes, colours and details give them an aesthetic quality that entrance and capture the imagination, yet concern and horror creep in on the realisation of the true reality of the subject.

Industrial Scars is a major touring exhibition in Germany and the USA.

“Industrial Scars is a vital collection, exposing the state of crumbling landscapes all too often kept from public eye.”

Spirit of the Amazon* is the work of photojournalist Sue Cunningham and writer Patrick Cunningham. It is a celebration of cultural difference and a call for better stewardship of the world.

During their six month expedition by boat, the authors followed the course of the mighty Xingu River, a tributary of the Amazon, travelling 2,500km through the heart of Brazil. They visited 50 remote tribal villages and tell the story of the communities they met; their daily lives, their connection to the land and to the rivers, and the threats which pervade each day of their lives.

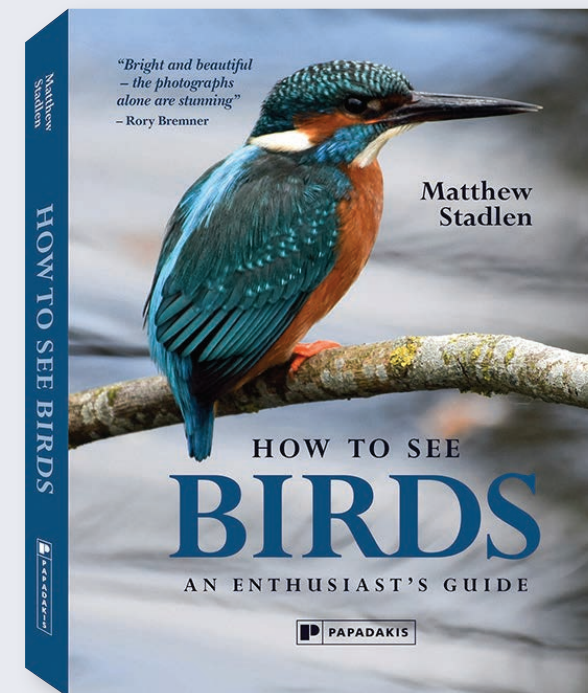

HOW TO SEE BIRDS

When we see a bird, do we actually notice it? Many of us don't. But in Britain, there are more than a million members of the RSPB and, thanks to social media, there are also a growing number of bird photographers.

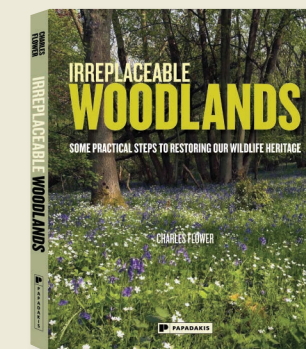

From the giant raptors of our skies to the sweetest singing garden Robin, from the streets of London to the Masai Mara, How To See Birds offers us the key to a thrilling world. Using his photographs as a guide, Matthew Stadlen takes us on a very personal bird-watching journey and in the process, helps us to see birds – to really see birds!

- A brilliantly written and personal bird-watching journey
- The author is a TV and radio broadcaster, with a large social media following
- Features a wide range of birds, from the common woodpigeon to exotic South African sunbirds
- The perfect book for the amateur bird-watcher

BARNSBURY WALK

AN ARCHITECT'S GUIDE
JOHN MELVIN

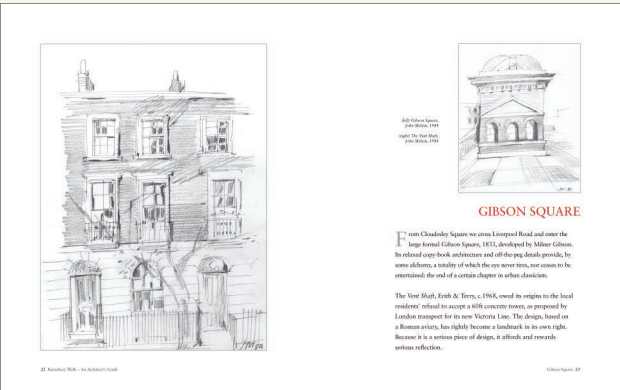

210 × 260 mm
48 pages
Word count: 2000
Paperback
ISBN: 978-1-906506-77-3
£14.99

John Melvin's intimate knowledge and artistic portrayal of Barnsbury's Regency and Victorian architecture offers a unique perspective on this historic London village. A thoughtful gift for those who appreciate the beauty of London's heritage.

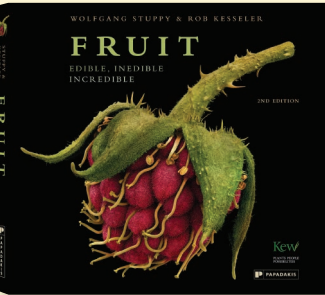

Barnsbury is one of the most consistent and attractive areas of Regency and early Victorian architecture and town-planning to be found in North London. These evocative drawings and commentary are the work of John Melvin, an architect who knows Barnsbury intimately. Drawn in 1984, they still have the power to inform and lightheartedly entertain the Londoner of today, revealing a history of a village in London that is surprisingly varied.

- Of particular local interest to Islington and surrounding areas
- Specifically relevant to architectural students and professionals – the text was produced at the request of local members of the RIBA
- Detailed and entertaining commentary and drawings all the work of an expert on Islington: John Melvin spent almost the entirety of his working life as an architect and town planner for Islington and the surrounding areas

"Best Publisher in the World" Gourmand Awards 2025

"Papadakis, the art publisher that continually surprises the world giving each book a universe of its own. Spanning subjects from the infinitely small to the immensely vast, your catalogue deepens our understanding of the universe and heightens our sense of wonder. The food-culture community is fortunate to experience the beauty you reveal, the instinct that guides your choices, and the books whose message resonates universally."

Edouard Cointreau, Chairman, Gourmand Awards

"I have met very few people with such a potential of creativity, such a high degree of publisher's ethos, and so much energy put into her plans and visions into practice. Alexandra Papadakis's books are beautiful, of stunning quality, and they bring clarity into a world which develops in rather mysterious ways. Papadakis books give insight, touch, and matter."

Armin Sinwell, Managing Director, Kosmos Books Verlag

"Alexandra Papadakis has a distinct and talented publishing vision. She has cultivated and curated a list of authors that use the visual as a means of communication. Her versatility is apparent across her fine list at Papadakis, and her knowledge of the craftsmanship of book making adorns each page of every title."

Christie Henry, Director, Princeton University Press

"Alexandra Papadakis is a gem, an author's ally, an enthusiastic, highly engaged publisher with an impeccable eye for quality and detail. Mixing six years worth of my work with her wise, expert guidance and a willingness to take creative risks, she produced a stunning result. It has been a true honour and joy to collaborate with her."

Robert Dash, Author of Food Planet Future

PAPADAKIS produces award-winning, high quality, beautiful books on design, photography, science, nature, and the environment. Our books are exciting, authoritative, and innovative, created by authors who are experts in their fields.
